THE THISTLE IN RACING TRIM.

EVERYTHING READY NOW FOR A SAIL.

BURGESS'S SUCCESSFUL CUTTERS-CAPTAIN BARR MILD-MANNERED, BUT FIRM.

The Thistle from stem to stern is now looking as bright and clean as a new pin, and one would imagine that there remains nothing more to do on board of her until the day of the race except to keep up her improved a prography. But Capitain Rays and maculate appearance, but Captain Barr and his mate amiled significantly when that suggestion was made to them, for there are a thousand and one mysterious ways to keep sailors busy on board a yacht while she ties at anchor. Yesterday the gig and cutter were swung from the dayits, and in the afternoon the sailors ad their usual Saturday half-holiday.

To-day there is sure to be a great crowd of visitors to the Thistie, and numerous small boats will swarm about her. Now that she has a coat of paint the sailors will take a little more pains than they old last Senday to keep the boats from bumping and scraping her. The Thistic will probably take her first sail to-morrow. The steam yacht Mohlcan from Glasgow, which has some of the racing contingent of Glasgow, the Thistle on board, is expected here on Tuesday.

Some old school sailors have suggested that Captain

Some old school sailors have suggested that Captain Ram is hardly the best man that could have been selected to command the Thistle, because he doesn't know how to "curse" and "get mad," which, according to some old timers, is the eminently fit and proper thing to do whenever an emergency comes of the proper thing to do whenever an emergency comes of proper thing to do whenever an emergency comes of proper thing to do whenever an emergency comes of proper thing to do whenever an emergency comes on the critical by demonstrating that seamen can be get to do their best under all circumstances, without any of that sort of exhortation which is usually addressed to the impenitent mule. But Captain Barr, although an exceedingly quiet and mild-manered man, conveys somehow the impression of holding a good deal in reserve, and it may be that be too keeps in his private locker a stock of sea phrases which in his judgment, justifies it. This week, in all probability, the Thistle will hold the sails and take some practice spins down the Bay, but if any of the big single stickers should be about, it is not at all likely that the Thistle will engage in any test of speed with them. That would not be in accordance with the discretion which the Botchmen have shown since they came here.

In the regatta of the Beverly Yacht Club the small Burgess cutter Papoose again obtained a brilling the trivery, defeating the famous Shadow by minutes over a thirty-mile course. In the regatta of the Eastern Yacht Club another of his cutters, the Zigeuner, it will be remembered, earried off the prize for third class single-stickers, defeating the Cinderella, a much larger boat. The Zigeuner, too, labored under many disadvantaces, being underrigged and entirely new, with bottom rough and sails unsattetohed, and withat boilt only as a cruising cutter. If this indicates that the cutter, as compared with the sloop, may yet turn out to be the fastest type of boat. It is gratifying to know that yachtsmen need not go to England to get them built. It lo part is hardly the best man that could have been select-

A DINNER TO THE MEN OF THE THISTLE. hose of the crew of the Thistle who have not yet got nissed something last night and so also did the few who had to stay on board to keep watch over her. The who had to stay on board to keep watch over her. The Social Sons of Scotland gave a dinner to the officers and crew of the Thistic at Marthell's, No. 5 Bowling Green, and before the festivities were half finished every man present, except the reporters, was willing to bet heavy radds on the Thistie. There were present from the Thistie Ca tain John Barry, Second Officer Daniel McKenzie, Navigator Kerr, Steward William Wright, Carpenter John Crawford, Salimaker John Graham and ten of the crew. John Fyfe, president of the club, presided, The first toast, "The President of the United States," was drunk in silence, the second, "The Queen," was responded to with "Rule Britannia," in which the Thistie men joined heartily. Then followed a Scotch song by the vice-president of the club, Richard Geatter. Next came the toast of the evening. "The Thistie-Her Captain and Crew." In speaking to it John Fyfe found his feelings as a naturalized American opposed to his feelings as native of Scotlant, but fluslly the ties of birth prevailed and he came out boldy for the Scotch but the Thistie and the Volunter. But the tail-end of that toast did not excite much enthusiasm.

Medical Centrial Barry wanted to be evening from reply-both the Thistle and the Volunteer. But the tail-end of that toast did not excite much enthusiasm.

Modest Captain Barr wanted to be excused from replying, but they wouldn't let him off, and finally he made this exceedingly brief and business-like speech: "I thank you very much for your good wishes. We will do but best to get that cup, if possible." He was applanded just as much as though he had made a long speech.

Navigator Kerr was forced to make a speech later on. Other toasts and songs filled out the evening.

8. H. SWEET ASTONISHES HENRY GEORGE. HAVE DEMOCRATS PROCURED THE REFUSAL BY

PROMISES OF A SIMILAR NOMINATION. Henry George was dumfounded when he heard that Bylvanus H. Sweet, who had been nominated for State Engineer and Surveyor at the convention of the United labor party, refused to accept the nomination. Mr. Sweet now says that the nomination was made without his knowledge or consent, and that he could not by any means accept it. His reasons are that he is a firm and consistent Democrat. He has not had any connection with the United Labor Party and strongly intimates that loes not wish to. He evidently thinks that his party who made him Engineer and Surveyor in 1873. He says, in fact, that after all the Democratic party has done for him he would not desert it for the best office that the United Labor party could give him. Mr. George rethe United Labor party could give him. Mr. George refused yesterday to discuss Mr. Sweet's declination. He intimated, however, that he understood that Mr. Sweet was thoroughly in accord with the principles of the United Labor party and was willing to throw off the eld Democratic yoke and cast in his lot with the Labor voters. "During the week," Mr. George said, "Mr. Sweet called a: my office and seemed to be enthusiastic over his nomination and thought he would surely accept."

Mr. George refused to discuss further the circumstances of the case. It was learned, however, that a meeting of the State Committee of the party will be called as soon as possible, and that a new nomination will be made by them. Who the candidate will be is not yet hinted at, but it will be some man known to be thoroughly in accord with the Labor movement and one who, if elected, can fill the position creditably. The accusation is made that Mr. Sweet was influenced in his latest decision by some of the party leaders of the Democratic fold and that ne was promised a like nomination by them if he would refuse the Laoor party's nomination, The Democratic managers feared that he would take from their regular nominee too many votes and they prefer that some one, not so well known, be the United Labor party's candidate.

IRISHMEN TO RAISE MORE MONEY IN AMERICA. There is a movement on foot among the Irish-Americans in this city to recommence the work of raising mey in aid of the big and, as is thought, final struggle in behalf of Home Rule at the polls, which cannot nov be long deferred. In Ireland the Unionists, who feel that be long deferred. In Ireland the Unionists, who feel that hey have no longer any followers in the constituencies worth speaking of, will in the majority of Instances go ever to the Tories, while the Tories, who divide with the Nationalists the representation of Ulster, the latter having a majority of one, will be certain to use all the resources at their sommand to resource many seats in the northern provinces, where the majority arainst them has been sleader. The diminution in the Government majority in Friday night's division on the proclamation of the League has induced the Irish leaders here to believe that a general election is imminent. Since the last general election the Tories have lost thirty-two votes, including the bye elections and the return of the dissident Liberals to their old aillies.

One of the most energetic of the workers in the Irish cause in this country said yesterday to a Tribuse reporter that a supreme effort would be made by all sympathyzers with Home Rule in America to show their sympathy with the demand of Ireland at the next seneral election; "for," he continued, "everything will depend on it, because, if Gladstone be again defeated at the polls, the power of man will not restrain the Irish from rejecting as useless constitutional agitation." J. S. Moioney, who believes in lighting for Ireland's freedom, but who is also friendly to Parnell and his methods, has just returned from a prelonged tour in Ireland. "I never saw such buoyancy and hopefulness on the one hand and galling provocation on the other," said he. "The Government are doing all they can to drive the people into revolt, but the people are wary and do not desire to play into the hands of their enemies. Any one poing over there from America is dogged as though he were a criminal from the moment he lands at Queens. It is a prospect of a coorcion act and are as ready now as ever lo go to Jail."

A GREAT SPIRIT MONOPOLY.

A SCHEME THAT AGITATES GERMANY. BISMARCK'S DIPLOMACY AND THE BULGARIAN SIT-UATION-EMPEROR WILLIAM AT THE MA-NŒUVRES - THE GERMAN TURF-A ROTHSCHILD ORDERED OUT OF VIENNA — NOTES.

Copyright: 1887, by The New York Associated Press:

Brillin, Aug. 27.—It is becoming doubtful whether the Government will present to the Reichstag a bill raising the import duties on cereals. The official press points out that an increase of duties might destroy all hope of getting a favorable tariff treaty with Austria-Hungary, for which German manufacturers are clamor-ing. They want fairer terms for manufactured articles imported from Austria, but then Austria-Hungary is sending a large amount of cereals into Germany and if the duties on these commodities were raised, Austria would retaliate upon Germany.

FORMING A SPIRIT MONOPOLY COMPANY The occurrence of the week of the greatest interest both in financial circles and to the general public has been the reported formation of the great Spirit Monopoly Company. There is some doubt, however, notwithstanding the confident assertions of interested parties, whether the company really has been formed. Some of the leading bankers, among them the Mendelssohns and Bielchroders, have refused to share in the enterprise and it is also threatened that a counter coalition to the company will be formed, which will seek to bind all spirit producers to sell to it at contract rates, retail prices to be fixed at the will of the company, which will thus become the focus of the entire domestic production. Many producers have already contracted for 120 marks per hectolitre, including the taxes for domestic production. As an immediate result of these rumors, the shares of numerous spirit distilling companies have rushed up some 33 per cent. Few voices are heard championing the cause of the consumers, who declare that the monopoly will lamentably raise prices. The monopolists further aim at the exportation of spirits at such prices as will destroy competition throughout the markets of the world. The capital of the company, which it was at first proposed to fix at 30,000,000 marks, has now been increased to 50,000,000 marks. A third of the entire number of shares have been reserved for the distillers, who will have a proportionate representation in the Board of Directors.

DIPLOMATIC RESULTS OF THE BULGARIAN TROUBLE. The prospect of a settlement of the Bulgarian imbroglio is more hazy than ever. Nothing definite is known as to Prince Bismarck's policy. It is certain that official circles retain the absolute belief that, whatever is official circles retain the absolute bellef that, whatever is happening, the Austro-German alliance remains intact. It is believed there is a better entente, but no special rapprocedment with Eussia as a result of Prince Bismarck's desiring to co-operate with the Czar in his present policy of securing respect for the Treaty of Berlin. This has been Bismarck's persistent atm, but not Russia's. The change in the relations between the two Governments is due to the efforts of M. de Giers, who, freed from the oppression of the Pan-Siavist party since M. Katkoff's death, seeks Germany's co operation within the limits of the Berlin treaty. If this friendly attitude continues, the mutual rational aversion may abate.

Meantime, the German press shows no special confidence in Russia. The Bourse has taken advantage of the changed situation to give a steady rise to Russian securi-dence in Russia. The bourse has taken advantage of the changed situation to give a steady rise to Russian securities from the low level to which they were forced two months ago, though the rise is nothing more than what the speculators regard as the normal values of the securities. German bankers will not take part in the proposed Russian loan. THE EMPEROR'S COMPLETE RECOVERY.

The best proof of the full restoration of the Emperor's health was his appearance at Potsdam yesterday at the manœuvres of the cavalry division of the Guards. The Emperor watched the evolutions from an open carriage, wearing a helmet instead of an undress cap, the use of wearing a helmet instead of an undress cap, the use of which is a certain sign that he is alling. He remained at Potsdam two hours, and when he returned to Babelsherg he was cheered by the crowd.

Preparations are being made for the Emperor's reception at the Koenigsberg maneuvres. A great pastilion is being built of wood. It will be lined with tapestry and will be divided into two apartments, one for the Emperor and the other for his suite. Dr. Von Puttkamer, teneral Von Schelendorf and Counts Von Molike and Waldensee will attend the maneuvres. The reports are now credited that the occasion will be signalized by a meeting between the Caar and Emperor William.

The Empress goes to Baden before the maneuvres, where she will be joined by the Emperor about the middle of September.

BISMARCK'S DAILY LIFE AT KISSINGEN. Prince Bismarck's life at Kissingen is described in the Magdeburger Zeitung. The Prince occupies a number of rooms in the schloss, which are furnished sumptuously rooms in the schoos, which are furnished sampadously and contain valuable paintings, rare old carvings and costly tapestry. The Prince rarely rises before 10 o'clock, but he works nightly until 2:30. He maintains his regular course of diet and habits and pays close attention to the preservation of his health.

RESIGNATIONS IN THE LEADER OFFICE. There was a disruption in The Leader office yesterday. The city staff are all ardent admirers of Henry George There was a disruption in The Leader office yesterday. The city staff are all ardent admirers of Henry George and John McMackin, and after the defeat of the latter on Priday night, they would not consent to work under a Socialistic management. When a TRIBUNE reporter went to the office yesterday afternoon. Mr. Schevitch, the editor-in-chief, was absent and there was confusion in the sanctum. City editor, editorial writers and reporters act on tables with long-irawn faces, talking with one another in subdued voices. It looked exceedingly like a strike, but it was not, only a wholesale reaignation of the entire city staff was taking place. On the editor's desk was a bundle of letters cach containing the resignation of one of the employes. They are John Foley, city editor; Frank Cahlil, James B. Bagley. W. E. Dougherty, Thomas S. Donohue and John E. Bunner, reporters, and James T. Gahn, eduterial writer. In the composing room there was a like commetion and all the anti-socialists had put their rules in their pockets and were waiting for their week's pay, preparatorly to leaving the office.

Mr. Scheviich was found by the reporter eating his luncheon in a restaurant near by. With him were Colonel Hinton and D. S. Jacobs. Mr. Jacobs is the secretary of the onsted Socialistic orranization of the Xth Assembly District. The three Socialists were deeply engaged in the discussion of theories for the advancement of the laboring classes, when Mr. Schevitch was informed of the intended resignations from his staff. He seemed greatly surprised and immediately left the table and went to the office. There he found the office in the condition as before stated. He said, however, that no matter what was done the paper would come out on Monday afternoon as usual, and would continue to be the organ of organized workingmen. There will be no change in its policy. He was greatly pleased at the result of the meeting on Frid y.night, as it showed that the majority of the stockhoblers are in favor of the present manner of running the pape meeting of representative conservative workingmen will be held in this city at which the formal expulsion of the Socialists from the ranks of the United Labor party is expected to be finally accomplished. A circular signed by over a hundred well-known representatives of labor is now being distributed among the Knights of Labor and trade unions, calling upon them to send delegates to a non-Socialist convention of the United Labor Party.

THE LINCOLN HOMESTEAD.

PLANS FOR ITS PRESERVATION. ROBERT LINCOLN HAS DEEDED IT TO THE STATE-

A CUSTODIAN TO CARE FOR THE RELICS. CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (Special).—The Board of Trustees of the Lincoln Homestead, consisting of the Governor, the Secretary of State, State Tressurer, State Anditor and Superintendent of Public Instruction, and so constituted by an act of the last Legislature, met last Tuesday at Springfield and organized by electing Governor Oglesby as president of the board and Auditor Swigert as secretary. The business of the board is to carry out the provisions of the bilt for some repair upon the old homestead and the appoint-ment of a custodian. Robert Liucoln has sent a deed of the property, and the State will tormally take possession at once. Robert Lincoln has owned the house since the assassination. Many efforts have been made by speculators and adventurers to purchase the property, but Mr. Lincoln has repeatedly re-fused all offers, intending probably to deed it ultimately to the State and save it from the grasp of the money-makers.

The house contains about ten rooms, which are of ordinary size. The two north rooms on the lower floor are occupied with the relics and memorials of Lincoln, about 2,000 in all, and consisting of several old pieces of furniture used by the family—the old cooking stove, which cooked the last meal eaten by the President and his family before starting for the President and his family before starting for Washington; law books and office furniture; the old family cradle in which Rebert heard the hullaby from his mother's lips; numerous small articles of small actual value, but valuable as relies; copies of small actual value, or valuate as reflect. Copies of all the memorials, addresses and resolutions of condence sent to Mrs. Lincoln from all parts of the world; all the biographies of Lincoln; copies of the comic and serious pictures of the war period and Mr. Lincoln; a stand made of wood taken from Lincoln's boarding house at old Saiem; campaign budges and devices of all sorts; 250 medals of every conceivable design; busts both small and large: letters from Graut, Hancock, Morton. Wade and hundreds of other illustrious men, testifying to the greatness of Lincoln; bits of Lincoln's garments, and other things too numerous to mention.

The house is now occupied by O. H. Oldroyd, a local

The house is now occupied by O. H. Oldroyd, a local merchant. He moved into the house about two years ago. Dr. Wenlandt lived in it before Mr. Oldroyd, and before Dr. Wenlandt, Colonel Harlow, formerly Secretary of State, occupied it for many years. Mr. Oldroyd was originally from Ohio, coming to Springfield about sixteen years ago. He served in Company E of the 20th Ohio Regiment in the Rebellion. He has slways had a disposition for collecting relies, and began to humor this characteristic back in the sixties by collecting old firearms, swords and battle memoratoes. When Lincoln died, he began the work of getting together anything and everything pertaining to the martyr President. He has steadily gone on adding, until to-day he has a large and valuable collection. He understood some time before the meeting of the

He understood some time before the meeting of the last Legislature what Robert Lincoln's intentions were in reterence to the final disposition of the property, and went to work to bring it about. A resolution was offered by Representative Bogardus, at the suggestion of Mr. Oldroyd, for the purpose of ascertaining upon what terms the State could acquire possession of the eld Lincoln homestead and also of the memorial collection now in the house. A committee was appointed, with Representative Bogardus as chairman, to see Mr. Lincoln and ascertain his wishes, and also what terms could be made with Mr. Oldroyd for keeping his collection in the house. Mr. Lincoln agreed to deed the property to the State upon condition, that the property should be preserved, kept in order, and free of access to all who wished to visit it. Mr. Oldroyd told the committee that, if he were appointed custodian, he would keep his collection in the house and deed the property to the State at his death. He also said that he would expert a salary of $1,800 a year. The committee's report was accepted, and a resolution was introduced nocepting Mr. Lincoln's proposition and providing for the retention of the Oldroyd collection in the house, although not making Mr. Oldroyd as custodian. The resolution had reached a second reading in the Senate, when Senator Curties offered a substitute, which provided that the custodian should be a crippied Illinois seldier. This failed, and the bill passed as originally introduced.

THE HAMMERSCHLAG PATENT SUSTAINED. CHICAGO, Aug. 27 .- In the United States Circuit Court yesterday, Judge Grosham delivered an opinion in the long litigated Hammerschlag waxed paper patent case. His decision sustained the validity of the Hammerschlag patent, which was contested by the defendants, who were sued for infringement. The claim of the defence that the patents were invalid because the process was an old one and had been used in England, was considered by the Court, but the Judge did not regard it as sufficient.

REPORM IN TENEMENT-HOUSE SANITATION. President Bayles said that these houses had all been inspected and defects

It is a peculiarity of the teament-house that it is constantly changing its snottary character and if in perfectly actifactory condition this week man next week he properly the subject of an order. What would be unfit for a clean and well-conditioned citizen is sought and enjoyed by those whose occupation would defile the hest structure in New-York. These degraded and filtry people must and will live somewhere, and as they make the conditions which surround them, it becomes the duty of this Department to pursue them from place to place like an avenuity in time inculcate more cleanly and decent habits and that the owners will appreciate the fact that the ownership of tenements imposes a duty which should not be neglected until the machinery of the Department is soft motion to its reluctant performance. We are now doing much systematic and considerations work in the direction of tene sent-house reform, and the results are apparent to all who look for them. COMMERCIAL UNION WITH CANADA.

CONGRUSSMAN BUTTERWORTH AND ERASTUS WIMAN WANT TO SEE IT ACCOMPLISHED. DETROIT, Aug. 27.—In response to invitations from the commercial bodies of Detroit, addresses were delivered this evening at White's Opera House on commercial union between the United States and Canada by Erastus Wiman, of New-York; Congressman Butterworth, of Ohio, and Professor Goldwin Smith, of Toronto. Mr. Butterworth said among other things :

Commercial Union will promote every worthy interest and enterprise in the United States, except those which thrive by a system of extortion under the protection of partial law. The measure is in the interest of every man in the United States who eats his broad in the sweat of his face. It is in perfect harmony with the protective system. It was supported by Lincoin, by Adams, by Winthrop and Grant. It is within the wider range advocated by James 6. Biaine, who recognized the advantage of a union with States of South America, which embraced what is proposed with reference to Cantila.

Mr. Wiman said in part:

Mr. Wiman said in part:

So far as trade and commerce are concerned, there would have been the same justification to have kept Michigan out of the Union as there is now for keeping out the trade and commerce of Canada. The prosperity of the United States has had enormous contributions from the rich and varied products of Michigan, a drom the trade which their development has created. Staking out of sight the political difference in the two countries, the products and trade of Canada will, in even greater measure, contribute to the prosperity, the wealth and progress of the United States, if with the same rapidity they are developed, and there is no impediment to their free flow in the direction which they would naturally seek.

Landa is to-day no more a part of the British Empire than New York or Massaghusetts. Long ago, commercially speaking, Canada became independent, and by exacting the same duties on every dollar's worth of English geois as she has exacted on the goods of the United States, Germany, or other countries, she separated herself commercially, so to speak, from Great Britain as completely as did the American colonies who declared their independence in 1776.

THE FIRE RECORD.

ARRESTED FOR INCENDIARISM. Shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning smoke poured from the windows of the four-story frame tenement-house No. 70 Hudson-st., Hoboken. The premises were occupied by a dozen families and the wildest excitement prevailed. Men and women carrying children rushed madly to the street in their night clothes. The flames were raging in the rear of the restaurant on the ground floor, but on the arrival of the Fire Department The flames were raging in the rear of the restaurant on the ground floor, but on the arrival of the Fire Department they were soon extinguished. On investigation the fire was found to be the work of an incendiary. A large pile of boards were saturated with kerosene oil and a deliberate pian had been made to destroy the premises. The police immediately placed Henry Nordham, the proprietor of the restaurant, under arrest on a charge of arson. Nordham denied the charge and was taken with several violent fits. So severe was his case that the hearing was adjourned. When Nordham's wife saw him in the clutches of the law, she became hysterical and it required the efforts of several neighbors to quiet her. The couple have been married only a short time and it is feared the shock may have serious results for the young wife. Nordham has his goods insured for $1,500, and the policy expires next month. It is said the plan had been perfected, and that he intended to sell out and sail for Germany. It the fire had gained sufficient headway a serious loss of life would have resulted.

TWO CURIOUS CREATURES FROM AFRICA. SAID TO BE CHILDREN OF HUMAN BEINGS-LITTLE

REMOVED FROM MONKEYS.

A student of the Darwinian theory would undoubtedly think that the missing link has been found, should he see two objects now at the store of Charles Reiche & Brother, animal dealers in Park row, who are always on the lookout for strange creatures, and now have se-cured two animals that are likely to give the naturalists many hours of study before it is satisfactorily explaine! what they are. Mr. Reiche is a well-informed naturalist, and he has given up trying to solve the mystery. The animals in question are known as He and It, and they arrived in this country in a large wooden crate three days ago on the Wieland. Mr. Reiche get them in London from a hunter who has spent many years in Southern Africa. He is known only as Hunter Wilhelm, and has had as many adventures as Allan Quatermain himself. About a year ago Wilhelm came across a tribe of natives near the Zambezi River in South Africa, and although never visited by a white man before, they treated him kindly. From them he learned that 100 miles further into the interior there was a tribe of hairy savages that frequently swooped down upon the neighboring natives and carried off their women, tore up their crops and stole everything possible to be carried away.

While the hunter was in the village a woman that had been captured a few months before returned with three children that she had stolen from the tribe. The hunter resolved to get them if possible, and as he was friendly with the chiler, bought them for trinkels that he had with him and started immediately for England. Mr. Reiche saw him in London and purchased the three "children" from him. There were two males and one female, 'put the female, named She, died before starting for this country. One would be at a loss what to liken them to. Their heads are as well formed and developed as a two-year-old child's, and the forehead is not at all receding, but straight and intelligent looking. The eyes are brown, large and bright, and follow a stranger's movements with the inquiring look of a bright baby. The nose, however, is like an African negro's, only much fatter, and the mouth resembles Mr. Crowley's closely. The body is well formed and the pannel extremely like those of the children in Southern countries, that are fed on bananas. Their hands are human in shape and so are the feet, except the toes, which are longer than a child's and more movable. Long red hair of a sparse growth is on the back and limbs, but the front of the body, which is of a tan color, is perfectly free from it.

Although something like a monkey or an ape in appearance, the animals have no tails, and there is no suspicion that there might have been one originally, whic don from a hunter who has spent many years in Southern Africa. He is known only as Hunter Wilhelm, and

BOAT—LETTERS FROM HIS FATHER.

A well-dressed man, who looked to be about thirty years old, jumped into the North River from the annex boat No. 2 of the Pennsylvania Railroad, while opposite Pler No. 20, late yesterday afternoon. It was plainly his intention to commit suicide, as he made no effort to save himself from drowning. Captain Jerome Kipp. of the tugboat Annie Kipp, saw the man go overboard and he hurried to his assistance. The deck hands on the tug rescued the man from the water, but he had little life in him and died while the boat was carrying him to Pier No. 30. The police sent his body to the Morgue. In his pockets were 50 cents, three brass checks for baggage, three keys and some letters the envelopes of which bors the name Henry J.
Hartney. Some of the letters had been received by the man recently at Youngstown and at Toronto, Ont.
They gave the information that Hartney's home was at Ottawa and that he had been leading a life of dissipation, atthough his father, H. Hartney, had written to him from Ottawa, inclosing a postal order for $30 and begging him to be careful of the money. The letter alluded to the intention of the young man to go to NewYork, and contained many warnings and good advice.
There were other letters from his father.

A letter of earlier date, written from No. 593 Maria-st., Ottawa, evidently by the young man's sweetbeart, began with "My Dear Harry," told of the unimportant daily life of a young woman and was signed "Your loving Puessy."
